Suggested Formats

Scramble: the most common format for golf tournaments. This game is played by a team of four players where each member hits their ball throughout the game. The team chooses the best shot from each stroke and uses the same spot for each player until the ball is holed out. A single score is recorded for the team.

Best Ball: a form of play in which each player in the foursome plays his or her own golf ball throughout the hole, and then the team selects the lowest score on the hole to record for the team.

Alternate shot: a form of play where two partners play as a team by hitting a single ball in alternating order on each hole.

Suggested On-Course Games

Longest Drive: On Par 4 or Par 5 holes, golfers will hit tee shots into the fairway. The player with the longest drive wins the prize. You can make this format more entertaining by hitting the tee shot with a marshmallow, while wearing oven mitts or by swinging with your opposite hand.

Longest Putt: located on the green, the golfer that sinks the longest putt wins the prize.

Closest to the Pin: located on Par 3 holes, golfers will hit tee shots toward the green and measure their distance from the flagstick. At the end of the day, the golfer with the best tee shot - the one whose ball was closest to the pin - wins the prize.

Closest to the Line: located on Par 4 or Par 5 holes, a white chalk stripe longitudinally orientated down the center of the fairway will be painted on the grass. At the end of the day, the golfer with the most accurate drive - the one whose ball is closest to the line - wins the prize. This game can be adjusted so that golfers aim for a particular target, such as a beer keg or a company item placed out on the fairway.
